British & Emerald Isles Journey

EXCLUSIVE GUEST SPEAKER
Allen Packwood OBE

Five Countries, Infinite Variety

Set off on a 16-day adventure around the United Kingdom and Ireland, on an incredibly diverse itinerary that brings you the best of England, Ireland, Wales, Northern Ireland and Scotland... and five lesser-known islands, to boot. Walk among the brochs and prehistoric standing stones on Scotland's rugged Isle of Lewis. Visit four ancient and storied castles, and Andrew Carnegie's birthplace. Tour three English islands: one where Hitler stockpiled armaments during WWII; one where Queen Victoria spent her happiest hours; and one brimming with exotic blooming plants and ships' carvings. And then there are the cities: warm and welcoming Dublin, vibrant Belfast and historic, exciting Edinburgh. Sail on a bucolic lake in England's pastoral Lake District and stroll windswept cliffs above the tempestuous North Sea. Love literature? View the UNESCO-inscribed Book of Kells in Dublin; visit William Wordsworth's childhood home in the Lake District; see the lovely square celebrating Belfast's native son, C.S. Lewis; and get the chills at Whitby Abbey, the inspiration for Bram Stoker's "Dracula." Stroll in peaceful gardens, and learn first-hand about political strife. Experience all the glorious variety of the British and Emerald Isles!

Surprising Destinations

Osborne House and gardens,
Cowes, Isle of Wight England

The seaside town of Cowes on the Isle of Wight is a festive harbor town known for its yachting culture and sailing races. Along with a lovely Parade and Esplanade, Cowes boasts a charming High Street filled with boutiques, galleries and restaurants (it is rumored that Cowes has more eateries per square mile than any other town in the U.K.!). More famously, Cowes is home to Osborne House, Queen Victoria's beloved vacation home. "It's hard to imagine a lovelier spot," the queen proclaimed. Yet many international travelers have not been here. And what about Tresco, on the Isles of Scilly? One of the first surprises about Tresco is that, even though it is situated off the chilly coast of Cornwall, it supports a subtropical garden filled with exotic plants, many of which bloom all year. Tour this lush parkland, built around a crumbling 11th-century abbey, and marvel at the thousands of plants. Another surprise? The Valhalla Museum located within the gardens, home to figureheads and other ships' carvings salvaged from area shipwrecks since 1840. These surprising delights — as well as many other lovely adventures — await you as you tour the British and Emerald Isles!
